Excerpt: . . . which would depend upon the volume of the reservoir, pressure of gas, and the width of the fissure. If this theory is the true solution of the problem, it follows that the systematic and regular observation of earth movements would eventually prove a reliable means, to some extent, of foretelling when outbursts of gas should be anticipated. This theory, by no means a new one, was first broached in the Durham Advertiser, of July 25th, 1845, by the late Mr. William Lloyd Wharton, in describing a curious issue of gas which took place from the bed of the river Wear. The following is an abstract of his remarks: --A line of streams of gas was observed crossing the river Wear, diagonally in the direction of N. N. E. and S. S. W. , under the Framwellgate Bridge, and for a length of about 100...
