Excerpt: .during the combustion of a nitrogenous substance, requires only 700 grain-measures 200 X 300 of the alkaline solution, it is evident that----= 60 grain-measures were saturated by the ammonia, and the quantity of nitrogen is obtained 1.14 x 60 by the proportion--200: 1.14 = grain of nitrogen. 2. By measurement as free Nitrogen.--When the nitrogen exists in the organic substance in the form of an oxide, as in nitrobenzene, C, H<sub>6</sub>(NO<sub>2</sub>), ethyl nitrite, C, H<sub>6</sub>(NO)<sub>2</sub>, etc., the preceding method cannot be employed, because these nitrogen oxides are not completely converted into ammonia by heating with alkaline hydrates: it fails also in the case of certain organic bases. In such cases the nitrogen must be evolved in the free state by heating the organic body with copper oxide; and its volume determined by collecting it over mercury in a graduated jar. There are several ways of effecting this: the one most frequently employed is that of Dumas, as simplified by Melsens. A tube of Bohemian glass, 28 inches long, is securely sealed at one end; into this enough dry acid sodium carbonate is put to occupy 6 inches. A little pure copper oxide is next introduced, and afterwards the mixture of oxide and organic substances, the weight of the latter, between 4.5 and 9 grains, in a dry state, having been correctly determined. The remainder of the tube, amounting to nearly one-half of its length, is then filled up with pure copper oxide and spongy...
